

Our School Curriculum

To provide children with a happy, healthy, safe and challenging learning environment;
To encourage independence, individuality and self-esteem whilst offering them exciting and awe inspiring experiences;
To nurture all children by valuing and celebrating their individual achievements;
To maintain high expectations of learning, teaching and behaviour;
To encourage respect, responsibility and tolerance;
To promote a positive partnership between home, school and the wider community.

Learning How to Learn

- At Hatch Warren we recognise that children learn in different ways. We understand that children have strengths in different areas and so we teach the children in different ways in order to maximise their learning and ensure that they reach their full potential.
- We think that a curriculum for the C21st must help children to learn in the best ways we know how. We talk about VAK - this is visual, auditory and kinaesthetic learning styles. Some children learn by seeing and watching, some learn by listening and some learn by doing. Other children do a combination of these.
- We also teach children techniques that may help them remember and acquire information more easily such as mind maps. We also remind children of the basics...'staying hydrated, having plenty of exercise and sleep are the very best states for learning.'
